

Ina Schaum

Being Jewish (and) in Love

Two and a Half Stories about
Jews, Germans and Love

This is a substantially revised, extended and updated version of my thesis “Being Jewish (and) in Love” which was submitted for my Master’s degree in Sociology at Goethe University Frankfurt in 2017.

Cover: Aviva Kaminer, “Love Me Harder”, 2019

Table of Contents

Foreword by Dr. Eva Lezzi	7
Interlude	9
1. Heavy Lightness	11
2. Crafting my Eyes	20
2.1. Contours of Relational Life	21
2.2. Emotions and Orientations	32
2.3. The Past in the Present	34
Conclusion: A Doubleness	43
3. Exposed Methodology	44
3.1. Biography Research	46
3.1.1. Interactive Interviewing	48
3.1.2. Dialogic and Intersectional Analysis	53
3.1.3. Poetic Representation	55
3.2. Emotions in Research	58
3.2.1. The Researcher's Managed Heart	59
3.2.2. An Awkward Moment	60
3.2.3. Vulnerable Writing	62
Conclusion: At Least Two Stories	64
4. Aubrey's and Jesaja's Stories	65
4.1. How Kosher I Gonna Be	66
4.2. If I Would Project Someone	75
Conclusion: Between Contingency and Enclosure	83
5. On Stage of the Inherited World	91
5.1. Doing Identities	93
5.1.1. Doing 'being Jewish' and 'being German'	96
5.1.2. Inherited Worlds	100
5.2. Homework	106
5.2.1. Conversion Story	113
5.2.2. Stinky Stories	115
Conclusion: Between Going Astray and Inescapability	117

6. Failures and Hurts	118
7. References	121
Acknowledgements	136